Nothing further at this time.

The document will continue to be revised based on the other feedback and it is likely other corrections will be required for future meetings. Jeff was very appreciative. He knows he cannot make all the corrections for today so the next version you see will likely have things that require nuancing.

So we're all good with not having to provide anything further? Thanks!

All,

I spoke to Jeff and provided a fair bit of feedback on the document: timing of events; foreign involvement; actual use and impact of EA; objectives of protesters vs a very small group; etc.

He has very little time and a lot of edits coming in from a lot of places. As such, he is going to try and take care of the biggest issues identified by all the people consulted.

Mark

Subject: RE: revocation considerations

Jeff et al, great work. My only comment, perhaps unsurprisingly, is that the Assessment should use the same lens as the trigger. This was a legal point made by one of the Senators last night, and the foundation of a comms plan. In other words, it should explicitly address “the potential for unrest and violence that would threaten the safety and security of Canadians” and the “threat to Canada’s national interest and future economic security”. As it stands, the assessment is mostly observational, not analytical. In particular, I find the Soldier of Odin element a bit oversold – the issue is whether there is any evidence of concerted and broader-based threats of violence, which I would say we do not have at this time. Add a concluding para, maybe?

Subject: revocation considerations

Please find attached a document to guide a discussion on the appropriate time for revocation of the EA. You will all be aware of the short runway to the IRG tomorrow morning. If you have any comments, concerns or advice, please let me know first thing tomorrow and I will make any necessary changes.

There are a couple of outstanding issues:

- 1) Commissioner Lucki, we had input from the RCMP but I would be grateful if you or a senior officer could validate. I will send separately to Mark Flynn in an attempt to expedite.
- 2) Mike, you will see that I included the info about the Soldiers of Odin but would appreciate your taking a look at that para (highlighted in yellow)
- 3) Ken, I have not attempted a comm's plan. Generally I am not afraid to risk embarrassing myself but in this case it just seemed 100% likely. Call me first thing if you want to put our heads together on that (613 612 9531)

A huge thanks to the many folks who contributed, with a special shout out to Samantha MD and Dom R.

Best regards
Jeff
